CLEARED FOR FIGHT.

Czar's Fleet Sails from Vigo Accompanied by Spanish Cruiser and Watched by a Detachment from the Channel Squadron.

LONDON, Nov. 1, 7:50 p. m.—The foreign office has issued a statement announcing that it has received official information of the detachment of four officers from the Russian squadron and that the Russian government has issued strict orders to the squadron to protect all neutral commerce.

The government is still discussing the details of the international commission.

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 1.—The garrison has been mobilized and the artillerymen have been ordered to take up their positions at the different batteries of the rock.

The preparations cause disquietude as the regular mobilization of the quick-firing batteries has been manned this afternoon. Detachments of infantry have been detailed for duty on the central and detached moles. The signal station is being strictly guarded.

The channel squadron has been seen to be in readiness at an hour's notice.

At 2:30 p. m.—Vice-Admiral Beresford's flagship, the battleship Cæsar, has just fired a gun recalling all the officers of the channel squadron on board their respective ships. All the ships are cleared for action.

British warships strictly patrolled the straits all night long. They intercepted a collier, the London Bridge, bound from Barry for Port Said and brought her in here at noon.

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 1, 4:50 p. m.—All the British ships are now lying at anchor but they are all ready to sail.

The departure of a company of the royal garrison artillery, which had been ordered to start for Sierra Leone, Nov. 3, has been countermanded.

AIRSHIPS MUST DODGE CLOUDS

No Rain Is in Prospect, But Sun Will Be Obscured at Intervals.

More clouds and a little more wind are the weather forecast for the St. Louis and vicinity, but the clouds will probably not result in rain, and the wind will not be strong enough to entirely dissipate the smoke clouds that have been hovering over the city for two days. The forecast reads:

"Partly cloudy to-night and Wednesday, with unsettled weather Wednesday night. Temperature 54° to 60°. Variable winds."

Now in Vermont and near in Texas, Arkansas and the Mississippi, the weather will be

50,000 MINERS
AND 200 MINES
IDLE IN ILLINOIS

Sudden Forced Closing of 200 Mines in Illinois Prevents Accumulation of Reserve Stocks and a Coal Famine Is Feared.

NOT OVER SEVEN DAYS' SUPPLY IS IN SIGHT.

Operators Seek to Reduce Wages 5 1/2 Per Cent. But Although Miners Had Accepted the Cut, Hoisting Engineers Refused to Permit the Reduction of Their Scale.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—Reports indicate that less than 100 of the 300 coal mines in this state are hoisting coal to-day as a result of the strike of the hoisting engineers, which went into effect last midnight. A few of the operators are protected by "no strike" conditions in their contracts, intended to prevent running counter to the miners and others have clauses giving them privilege of treating with their own employees.

The total number of engineers who deserted their posts of duty is about 300, and almost 50,000 miners are thrown out of work in the aeronautic concourse at the World's Fair Monday afternoon.

After falling in their first attempt at an ascension and breaking a shaft off the propeller, they hastily repaired the apparatus and then made the most successful airship flight on record in America, if not in the world.

Since the starting flight of the "Arrow," last Tuesday, in which Knabenshue performed his first flight in the airship, he has made three more flights.

Baldwin steered his ship westward over the earth and sailed toward the west. His attendants held tightly to the ropes floating down from the "Arrow" at 100 feet.

He failed to head, evidently misreading his order. After going about 500 feet, he turned to the south over the airship and the aerodrome and started to land.

He evidently wanted his ship to catch the ship as it dropped. Then only the rear end, however, and a portion of the ship struck the ground. One of its propellers was broken off.

This finale was a decided disappointment to the growing crowd of spectators.

Baldwin, himself, disappeared at the moment of the accident.

The spectators followed him into the back of the aerodrome, and the expressions of the crowd were

"Good heavens, he is safe."

"We will repair this damage."

The crowd cheered his departure.

For over an hour they walked

WOMAN'S VISION SOLVES
"MARK TWAIN" MYSTERY

Fisherwoman's Wife on Shore Saw Man Jump From Spray-Dashed Ledge Under Wheel of City's Harbor Boat—Husband Laughed When He Heard Her Story.

Mrs. H. A. Like, a fisherman's wife, living on a sandbar just below the east end of the Merchants' bridge, was out hanging up clothes at 2 o'clock last Friday afternoon.

A raw wind was blowing down from the northwest, and the harbor boat Mark Twain was paddling up the muddy river.

As she stood watching the boat she saw a strange thing:

There was a man on the football back of the boat.

He thought she had imagined it, and talked of other things. Mrs. Like thought only the man who had crouched behind the wheel.

Saturday and Sunday the case of the mysterious man got on Mrs. Like's mind.

The Post-Dispatch reporters ascertained that her husband became vexed and chafed her for taking so much stock in her imagination.

Mrs. Like tried to forget about the man, but she could not. Her disease of mind by Monday afternoon was such that her husband had to come across and talk to her and report the case, though he assured her that it was all an hallucination, else they might have seen something in the papers about it.

The husband came into the Post-Dispatch office Tuesday morning and told the reporters that the harbor boat Mark Twain was up the river last Friday afternoon with a load of oysters when it struck a piece of shore line near the Merchants' bridge.

The guards at Workhouse prisoners were asked. They were impressed to dump the stones from the boat.

When the boat returned to the landing, the prisoners were returned to the Workhouse.

When they were told off at the gate they were sent to the guard.

One of the prisoners had disappeared. The guard so reported. No one knew how or where he had gone.

The guard, A. Lyons, was sentenced Sept. 30 to work out a fine of $100 for six months of hard labor, was posted to the Workhouse.

The guards say that Lyons had been despatched from the moment he was received at Workhouse to the guard to feel the disgrace of his life and was more morose.

It was reported that day when the prisoners were taken out on the football deck of the boat from the water thrown into the water.

The thought had no sooner struck her than she saw the mysterious man back of the wheel lift his hands, throw them back over his head, step forward quickly, and then plow his headlong into the rambled into the water.

He had plunged so far into the water that she could not escape by swimming reckoning without a Liceman J. R. McKenna Knew What to Do. However, the Victim Will Recover.

Liceman J. R. McKenna of the Central District qualified as an expert in the administration of first aid to the wounded Tuesday morning, by using a towel and his fingers to stop the bleeding and saving Enos S. Fish from death as a result of self-inflicted gunshot in his left wrist. As a result of the policeman's action, Fish is out of danger.

McKenna was called to Fish's room at 30 Olive street, shortly after 9 o'clock, and found the blood bleeding profusely from knife wounds which had opened.

Fish was rapidly bleeding to death. McKenna took a towel from a washstand at the bed, folded it into a narrow strip, and wound it around Fish's arms above the hand, knotted it and tied it to the knot in the club, which he twisted so that the flow of blood was stopped.

McKenna raised Fish from the bed and to the street, holding one end of which was still acting as a tourniquet.

An ambulance was summoned, two minutes Fish was at the City

The value of McKenna's treatment was shown when the policeman returned to the hospital from the severed artery, and Fish became so weak that he could not stand. Hospital physicians applied a more modern tourniquet and the man's club was removed on the wound.

Fish said he was despondent because he could not get work and had no money. He said he was born in Wisconsin but had been living at Montgomery City, Mo., where he has a wife.

they cheered Knabenshue when he appeared with it. They remembered his successful flight of last Tuesday.

There were more difficulties to be surmounted. It was another half hour before the chains and other attachments of the machine were in perfect order. Several times Knabenshue climbed into the craft, ready to start, and then got out again.

Finally he stepped into position, the attempt an ascension again. Many thought it would not.

At 3:15 the airship was again led out into "the open" and the spirit of the crowd rose. They cheered Baldwin again and power was turned on and the propeller began to revolve rapidly and noisily.

Then the crowd cheered in earnest. They cheered even more when Knabenshue started the ascent. He rose from his position in the northeast section of the concourse straight in the air for about twenty feet, and then started south. When he did not instantly go higher the crowd thought he could not get over the fence or had lost control of the ship. He turned west for an instant, then started south again. His machine seemed to wobble and the propeller pointed downward. It looked as if the airship would fall to the ground inside the aerodrome.

COURT'S DEC.

WORTH $275,000

Patient at City Hospital Gives Clothing to Attendant on Condition That He Recover.

LOSES IF HIS EFFORTS FAIL HALF MILLION YET UNPAID.

Claims Reward on Grounds of Being "Professional"—Surgical Operation to Decide.

John Wesley Moulder, a patient at the City Hospital, who has also been an assistant in the laboratory of that institution, believes in practice as his name would indicate, but it is also of the opinion that prayer to be efficacious must be of the exact, or, preferably, professional.

He says that one prayer by a preacher should be twice as effective as a layman's supplication.

Moulder will have an operation performed Tuesday on the frontal bone, and will go under the influence of chloroform. Because of the uncertainty of the action of that anesthetic he is taking no chances on the future, and has asked several fellow-patients to pray for his recovery.

One to whom he applied for his good offices was Albert Smith, a negro. Smith was willing to pray for a proper consideration.

"I have nothing to give you," said Moulder. "All the other fellows are praying for nothing. Why should I pay you?"

"Me?" said Smith. "Why, I've been a preacher. I know how to pray. These other patients are just amateur preachers, but I make a regular professional supplication. I know just how you will me that new suit of yours and I'll pray for you."

Moulder thought a moment. He wanted the prayers, but he understood human nature.

"If I will you the suit of clothes, I'll say 'Amen' to your prayers for me not to come to. I guess I'll do it. You might pray for me to die."

Smith knew that preachers of that sort don't know the fact that the $50,000 was subscribed because the persons authorized to determine what was done determined, and in so doing, had acted for all subscribers.

This right to determine was vested in the original body of twenty-five incorporators by the legislative act which covers all incorporations.

"There remains uncollected about $500,000 of stock subscriptions. Of this amount $250,000 is collectable and can be collected within the next 30 days.

"About $4,000,000 has been collected out of a total of $5,275,000 subscribed."

"It is important to compare what has been done in the matter of collecting subscriptions with the manner in which they were collected in Chicago. We have collected 90 per cent. Chicago collected only about 65 per cent."

It is reported that a local brokerage firm is buying World's Fair stocks at 2 and 3/4 and 4 and 1/2. If Smith puts me out all right it's worth the suit of clothes. If he doesn't earn it is good to Derkeper. McDonald is a good man. There is a lot of money coming to me on debts, notes and the like, and I have made McDonald

Moulder was formerly a cowboy in the Indian Territory, where he was born and grew up. He is an Indian in the sixteenth degree. About 35 miners are now working for him. The blow dented in his hand and he can't use it. He is a good man. After spending all his money for medical attendance, he was compelled to go to work for a living. There is not a pending a favorable opportunity for a operation, which will consist in the removal of a tumor from his eye and a grafting of skin over the cavity.

SUSPENDED MARRIED DAY

Injury to Footlights Favorite All That Saved Jockey and Owner From Judge's Action.

BOOKIES MAKE BIG WINNING

Program Full of Surprises, Including Mainspring's Record-Smashing Race.

It was a good thing for Jockey McMullen that T. A. Gay, owner of Footlights Favorite, was able to prove that the filly had been jumped on and severely cut in the fifth race at Delmar yesterday, otherwise it would surely have gone hard with the rider.

Footlights Favorite was a heavily backed favorite at even money. Tons of money were wagered on the filly by the general public, which backed the filly with unlimited confidence on the strength of her recent good form. No figures could bring horses like Mainspring and Sam Craig up to Footlights Favorite. Thus beat her. The race was a fast one, Mainspring having regained the distance in a fraction less than the best previous track record for the distance.

The officials had McMullen in the stand after the race and sent him back to the paddock crying. The jockey evidently thought he would be suspended and the judges had doubtless decided to put the boy down until T. A. Gay came up from the paddock with both his hands covered with blood, which he represented to have accumulated while dressing the mare's cut foot. Dr. W. H. Rexford substantiated the statement of Gay that Footlights Favorite had been cut down.

The strange feature about the filly being cut down is the fact that she was Jockey H. Dickson rode a very bad race during the race and other stage of the contest. Footlights Favorite was found lying out of the race track near the finish, then came with a rush and only beaten a length at the finish. However, the filly had been a front runner, and started out to win the race yesterday, but Alcalanis let her drop back and she swung into the stretch before the finish.

No matter if the filly was cut down the injury did not prevent her from displaying an extraordinary burst of speed in the finish. McMullen rode Footlights Favorite and plainly outdistanced Dickson on straight. Dickson had the best horse under him, but Foiles Berger got the best ride.

Pierce J. gave the talent an awful jolt in the finish. His pony went up the face of the good plan on the home and was indicative of what could be expected under the circumstances. Pierce J. was the best horse in the race.

John S. Bratton picked up a handy racing tool when he bought America out of a selling race for $700. The filly nearly won the race out of Bratton when she captured the last race on John Johnson's account with success on the Bratton horses during the closing days of the Delmas meeting.

John S. Bratton closed the season in a blaze of glory. He won two purses with John S. Bratton and Eddie Mathis is the best 2-year-old filly trained in the lines of Loretta M. was bought by H. H. Tichenor and shipped away.

John S. Bratton is a large, fine-looking filly by Ingolhoffer, and she ought to develop into a real high class mare in good hands. Her intent to race at New Orleans this winter is well made, but a serious mistake if he campaigns this filly too hard. The filly ought to be turned over to a good trainer and given a chance to grow and chicken out. She is too high class a filly for winter racing.

When it was running seriously people kept writing to the editor begging for advanced proofs, one man pleading that he had heart disease and feared he might die before it came to a close. A reader of Blackwood's for sixty years says: "Not since I waited feverishly for Monte Cristo to appear have I been so excited by a story."

The New York Evening Mail says of the story:

"This is the story of a strong man and a strong woman and their high-handed grasping for happiness in the face of the moral law. The woman, magnificent in her love, rises above the considerations of conventions, above fear, above conscience. Circumstances give her the right to follow the dictates of an overwhelming passion.

It will take rank with the few really good books."

Translations into French and German have already been undertaken. The novel is being made into a play in England and in America.

The Truants

It is the story of a man, none too clever, and a woman, none too strong, who are confronted by a situation that tests the strength and quality of both. These characters are human in their weaknesses, quick to enlist the sympathy, and interesting to follow through a lot of startling developments.

Military honor and a wife's reputation are balanced in the scales.

The Son of Royal Langbrith

This is not one of the strongest, it is the strongest story William C. Howells has ever written. It is certain to be the most popular perfect piece of fiction.

It is the Brooklyn Eagle. It is a to be read at a sitting—there stopping place in the action.

WONDER CAUSED BY NEW OFFICIAL

World's Fair Attaches Puzzled by the Appointment of an Official Copy Reader.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS BUSINESS

But When They Learned He Was Editing Reports Their Anxiety Subsided.

The World's Fair has a new official—a copy reader.

Since the report of his appointment spread through the Administration building there has been more or less commotion.

"What is the duty of an official in that?" is being asked and asked.

Many heads of departments can not tell a copy reader from a commissioner-general or a night watchman. Some of them imagine he may be some sort of a private detective or inspector.

A few of the wiser officials have learned that a copy reader has something to do with the press. As a result they have asked reporters about it.

This has not relieved their anxiety.

"A copy reader," the reporters tell them, "is a man who without any discrimination, kills the best things he sees in the 'copy'—manuscript he edits."

They have been wondering whether the new official will kill them, if he considers them very good things.

Those who have a new official believe he will do his duty fearlessly. He is Lawrence Grahame, secretary of the national commission.

He has already armed himself for his new position and has started to work in his office on the second floor of the Administration building.

ENGINEER HILL IS STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Man Found Lying in Cab Two Weeks Ago Has Not Recovered.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—This makes the thirteenth day that Illinois Central Engineer Ralph Hill has remained unconscious at the Springfield hospital following a most peculiar accident while on his freight run en route to St. Louis. In all the time since Hill was brought to the hospital, he has not had a lucid moment and each is passing excepting occasionally the visit of the surgeon.

When Hill failed to show up for a small station south of here, where he had orders to meet a northbound passenger train, his fireman called to him, receiving no answer, the fireman crossed over to the engineer's side and found Hill lying unconscious.

As the engineer made his discovery he noted that the engine had passed the switch point where the freight train was to meet the passenger. He stopped the train, backed up and headed into the siding. The Diamond Standard thundered past, having struck the engineer's side, totally oblivious to their narrow escape.

Hill had not been sufficiently conscious to let his fireman know him, firing a shot of blood to explain how the accident happened. It was presumed he was riding with his head outside the cab, which was near the water spout, and that his head struck the water spout. Members of Hill's family have not been able to identify him, but he has not recognized any of them.

Traveling by the New York Central lines the Michigan Central on the lake route four from Chicago. If you take one train four from Chicago, you can use up your time only to wait a very short time for another. Eight trains a day, Chicago to New York. Four trains a day, St. Louis to New York.

HALLOWEEN PRANK SERIOUS.

Young Man May Lose Finger from Dangerous Burn.

A. B. Katz, 28 years old, of 800 Eddie street is at the City Hospital suffering from serious burns as the result of being electricuted Monday because he was unfamiliar with boyish Halloween pranks.

Katz compiled with the request of several friends to remove a wire which they had thrown over a trolley wire at Eighth and Wash streets. One end of the wire was tied to an iron post, the other end to a chair. When Katz touched the wire he was knocked to the ground and rendered partially unconscious.

He was taken to the City Hospital.

As a result of the burns Katz, it is said, will lose one of the fingers of his left hand.

Theodore will stand by all the Rooseveltian interests.

The Greedy Old Party should be retired until it has learned something more of justice.

Voting for Folk is the only way the Missouri voter has of knocking bribery and bootlegging.

WHOLESALE JAIL DELIVERIES.

Arthur N. Sager, candidate for circuit attorney on the Republican ticket, made several remarkable statements in his speech Saturday night. He is quoted as having said that bootleg is not an issue and never has been, because all honest men are opposed to bootleg.

All honest men are and have been opposed to bootleg, yet despite that fact bootleg has flourished in the state and city legislatures, and continued to flourish without fear of prosecution for the bootleggers and bribees until St. Louis put into the office of circuit attorney a man who made bootleg an issue. The fact that the people were honest did not prevent bootlegging. There were dishonest office holders who bootlegged with impunity and dishonest promoters and corporation managers who bribed bootleggers, until Mr. Folk forced the issue of bootleg in the and at the bar of public opinion.

Bootleg is an issue and must be kept an issue until the lobbyists are driven from the legislature and bribing becomes so dangerous that lobbyists and office holders will not dare to be guilty of it.

Mr. Sager promises to "clean out the jail." He says: "If we are not enough courts and not enough assistant circuit attorneys to give trials to the men and women confined there, will nolle pross their cases and turn them loose."

Have any complaints been made of late by innocent persons confined in the jail that they cannot get trial? The criminal courts have been doing effective work within recent years, and the docket should be kept as clean as possible. The statement of the man who wants to be chief prosecuting officer of the city that he will turn the prisoners in the jail loose if he cannot give them immediate trial is startling, to say the least. Most of the delays of justice now are caused by the persistent efforts of attorneys to continue the cases of their criminal clients. Cases of bootleggers have been stretched out for a year or more by continuances on the part of the defendants. What limit of time will Mr. Sager give himself in which to try all the prisoners in the jail? Will he include among the prisoners whom he will turn loose all of those who do not want to be tried?

Mr. Sager's rule would appeal very strongly to the criminal classes, but not to the honest folks in the community, at whose expense the jails and courts are maintained to protect them from the criminals. They do not want the gates of the jail thrown open and the criminals turned loose on the city. They are not likely to want a prosecuting officer who would do that, under any circumstances.

St. Louisians were disgusted with the free use of the "nolle pros" when Zachritz was circuit attorney, but he did not attempt wholesale jail deliveries.

Perhaps Col. Frank James has not seen what Mr. Roosevelt said of Expander Thomas Jefferson.

PRACTICAL AERIAL NAVIGATION.

One of the most splendid and beneficial triumphs of the World's Fair was accomplished Monday afternoon, when aerial navigation became a demonstrated fact.

Mr. T. S. Baldwin's airship, the California Arrow, navigated by A. Roy Knabenshue, is a dirigible aerial vessel. It realized the dream of Leonardo di Vinci that "men will fly" and convinced the most skeptical that the air can be navigated.

Of course, Capt. Baldwin's machine is not perfected. Much remains to be done to make flight practical and customary. The long-sought problem of lightness with strength must be solved by ingenuity sure to be applied, now that the first step is successfully taken. And means must be found to make head against a stronger wind than that which blew Monday afternoon. But these are tasks for the future which can be performed. The fact that aerial flight is possible was demonstrated to a nicely when Mr. Knabenshue brought back the California Arrow to the starting point and made a safe landing, after a voyage characterized by all sorts of evolutions performed at the will of the navigator.

Mr. Baldwin, the inventor, has achieved a success of the first order of importance. Mr. Knabenshue, the navigator, is to be congratulated upon the enthusiasm, intelligence, coolness and skill with which he performed his perilous service to science. And all praise for their interest in and encouragement of what appeared to be a forlorn cause, should be offered the World's Fair managers.

The Spanish Chamber of Deputies has no more dignity than the St. Louis House of Delegates.

A FOOLISH HERO.

Dr. B. Crowson, principal of a New York school, belongs to the species noted for eagerness to rush in where angels fear to tread.

He rushed into a woman's meeting the other day and told the assembled multitude that "man is the superior of women in intellect." "Woman exchanges work for matrimony," he said. "Man enters matrimony and his work begins harder than ever."

Ever since Semiramis outwitted her husband in the game of statesmanship and Aspasia got credit for the composition of oracles' occasional addresses the relative intellectual power of men and women has been an open question. And wiser men are anxious to leave it open. To do so is to incur that no sensible man likes to incur.

To affirm anything dogmatically which is large number of thinking men and women in one's self crude, half-baked or very young involves a peril reverted by any to proclaim this class of letters, the fate of the dauphin, the man in the iron mask, the assistant of Billy Patterson, whether Santos-Dumont uses hot air or hydrogen gas when he postpones an ascension, and the intellectual stature of women.

On such questions there is as much evidence on one side as the other. And there is no common sense on either. The questions are not worth while. Dr. Crowson will save himself a lot of trouble by affirming only well-known and generally accepted propositions concerning matters of no importance, because it is in the discussion of just such questions that all manner of hatred and malice and all uncharitableness is excited.

In his report as Secretary of Commerce Dec. 1, 1903, Mr. Cortelyou declared that "publicity will disclose unfair dealings, dishonesty and corruption." Is that why he refuses publicity to his doings as campaign manager?

A REAL CAMPAIGN.

When the Democratic candidate for the presidency awoke to the necessity of impressing upon the country by pen and tongue the importance of the great issues he represents the people awoke to a realization of the importance of the issues. When Judge Parker grasped the leadership and went on the platform to tell the country the danger that beset it from Rooseveltism, tariff robbery and monopoly, and what he would do to avert disaster, the campaign took on form and vigor, his leadership rapidly became forceful and aggressive, his utterances grew in earnestness and effectiveness. Popular apathy vanished. The people realized that a genuine political fight over vital issues was on and joined in the fight.

In St. Louis the monster mass meeting at the Coliseum eloquently testified to the fact that confident enthusiasm had taken possession of the Democratic masses.

News from all the doubtful states fell of strong, hopeful, aggressive campaigns and good results. There is harmony among the Democrats and a strong drift of independent votes towards Parker. Careful polls of New York City and state show a decided advantage on the Democratic side, and this evidence of Democratic success there not only points to Democratic gains in New Jersey and Connecticut, but strongly influences the voters of these former Democratic states. Maryland is practically conceded to the Democrats and great gains are reported from Indiana, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The people are beginning to think; they are getting a true view of Roosevelt and his swashbuckling methods and pretenses. They see him as he is, a swaggering figure in fustian, blown with boastful breath, appealing to national vanity and thoughtless jingoism, to the greed of the selfish and the vanity thrist of the adventurous.

That war could possibly arise out of an absurd blunder like the North Sea incident is one of the vicious anachronisms of militarism. That it has been averted is evidence that humanity and common sense are making progress.

The police officers who could not conscientiously arrest river gamblers because it was Sunday are true heroes. Men who do their duty for the sake of conscience are ineffably rare.

November should add 3,000,000 to the attendance at the World's Fair. The weather is perfect. The opportunity to take a course at the people's university should not be missed.

The Hay idea may be harmony among the great powers while we give the little ones the big stick.

Get out to the Fair. You will never see another as great.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

NOTHING BUT VOCALISTS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Will your paper not voice the sentiments of music lovers of this city? We have had vocalists ad nauseam at the Symphony Concerts. Give us some who are not mere pretenders, who are not anything. One would think there were no other soloists to be had but vocalists.

A MUSIC LOVER.

ELECTRICITY BUILDING OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY NIGHTS.

What is the use of keeping open the Electricity building on Monday and Friday nights unless the Fair authorities let the public know that such a beautiful building is open on these evenings? Two weeks of the Electricity building at the Exposition do not know that our building is open until 9 P.M. I think it would be a good plan if posters were placed on the grounds notifying the public of this fact. There must be some lack of judgment in the exhibitors' department.

AN EXHIBITOR.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The graphic picture in last Friday's issue of a great high-toned morning newspaper of the American Mechanic gloating over the high estimation in which he is held by the G. O. P. leaders—and at the same time reveals their own lofty ideals. See the animal satisfaction pictured in his bowing to the good things he is emptying from the F. D. P. He surely will "stand pat," as the picture shows him so completely abased in the F. D. P. as to be a sight of even contempt to the F. D. P. and the elect except, perhaps, the consciousness that R. whose portrait is placed on the wall behind him is the magician who fills the pail.

Mr. Sager's rule would appeal very strongly to the criminal classes, but not to the honest folks in the community, at whose expense the jails and courts are maintained to protect them from the criminals. They do not want the gates of the jail thrown open and the criminals turned loose on the city. They are not likely to want a prosecuting officer who would do that, under any circumstances.

Perhaps Col. Frank James has not seen what Mr. Roosevelt said of Expander Thomas Jefferson.

READY FOR THE JURY.

In the very first sentence of his impressive speech last night Judge Parker described the most significant feature of the closing week of the campaign.

"I have come," he said, "in response to your invitation to address you briefly in what you justly term the stronghold of Democratic faith and of Republican revolt."

This is the voice of one speaking not as a partisan to partisans, but as an American to Americans. "Republican Revolt" is the product of Republican conscience, which is as sensitive as Democratic conscience to a moral appeal honestly directed.

And a moral issue has now overshadowed all others. As Judge Parker states it, in cool, judicial phrases:

"Congress creates a new department of commerce and labor. Of that department the President of the United States appoints a secretary. That secretary was his private secretary. Within that department provision is made for the collection from large corporations, including the so-called trusts, of information which, it is to be borne in mind, is to be submitted to the President for private or public use as he may direct. By grace of the same executive, this secretary, through whose department this information is collected, becomes the chairman of the national Republican committee. His chief duty it has been and still is to collect funds for the purpose of securing the election of the President. And it is now notorious that there has resulted from this organized importunity—whatever may be the precise way in which it is made effective—an overflowing treasury to the committee, of which boast is openly and continually made."

This mortaging of the Presidency for campaign contribution creates an issue that transcends party lines. The Republican and the independent voter feel the stain it puts upon the national honor. They are part of the jury that has listened to the evidence and that is now to give an honest verdict upon the case submitted.

When Mr. Cortelyou was a collector of facts, before he became a collector of tribute, he said of his bureau of corporations in his first annual report:

"The creation of the bureau was viewed by some with alarm, or at least with suspicion. It was feared that the powers granted might be hastily or inadvertently used to the injury of legitimate enterprise."

The alarm was well founded when the corporations found that their inquisitor was going to come to them but for financial favors. They felt then that they could say of the government, as Addicks said of the Delaware senatorship: "We have been sold out, and we are going to have it."

It all comes at last to the President. Cortelyou, trusts, corruption, as all roads lead to Rome, so all these lead to Roosevelt. He, the official and political creator of Cortelyou, has uttered no word of defense, and in such a case silence is confession.

This first duty of the American jury is to render a verdict against the defendant in this particular case. But such a verdict would be a poor achievement if it stood alone.

Mr. Roosevelt is no worse than most politicians—merely more audacious and possessed of opportunities which no others have had before him. What is needed above all is to see that no others have such opportunities after him.

The use of money in elections has reached one of those climaxes that precede and produce revolt. Both parties are guilty, but not equally so. The party in power has protection and privileges to sell, for a full generation has derived tribute upon those whom the government could help or hinder. It is the chief culprit; the Democratic party, so far as it has offended, has been its humble imitator.

It is time for the law to take notice of this evil that is poisoning its source. We ought to have a national corrupt practices act that would forbid corporate contributions to campaign funds and would compel a complete public accounting for all money received from every source. Judge Parker has shown a becoming indignation in the presence of Republican financial debauchery—let us hope that he will identify himself and the Democracy with this reform, which would tend to purify all parties alike.

If the Democratic party should make this cause its own it would find itself in the increased public confidence it would command, ample compensation for all the cash contributions it would lose. After all, money in politics is only to gain votes, and if the votes come directly, without the money, there is an economy of effort as well as a gain in self-respect in getting them that way.

One more needed reform is to relieve the President of the tremendous temptation to use official power in promoting his re-election. Very few Presidents have been able to escape that danger. Judge Parker proposed to avoid it by voluntarily limiting himself to a single term. Such resolutions are easy to make, but hard to keep. A President needs to be protected against himself.

Judge Parker, with his views on the subject of a second term, would probably approve a constitutional amendment limiting the President to a single term of six years. That and a corrupt practices law would sterilize the soil that produces Cortelyou.

Extracts from last evening show how strongly Judge Parker feels upon the subject of the corruption that is degrading the grand assize of fifteen million citizens into an auction of votes. May we not hope that he will refuse to be satisfied with a piecemeal attack, but will persevere until a remedy is secured, radical, comprehensive and permanent.

They are part of the jury that has listened to the evidence and that is now to give an honest verdict upon the case submitted.

When Mr. Cortelyou was a collector of facts, before he became a collector of tribute, he said of his bureau of corporations in his first annual report:

"The creation of the bureau was viewed by some with alarm, or at least with suspicion. It was feared that the powers granted might be hastily or inadvertently used to the injury of legitimate enterprise."

The alarm was well founded when the corporations found that their inquisitor was going to come to them but for financial favors. They felt then that they could say of the government, as Addicks said of the Delaware senatorship: "We have been sold out, and we are going to have it."

It all comes at last to the President. Cortelyou, trusts, corruption, as all roads lead to Rome, so all these lead to Roosevelt. He, the official and political creator of Cortelyou, has uttered no word of defense, and in such a case silence is confession.

This first duty of the American jury is to render a verdict against the defendant in this particular case. But such a verdict would be a poor achievement if it stood alone.

Mr. Roosevelt is no worse than most politicians—merely more audacious and possessed of opportunities which no others have had before him. What is needed above all is to see that no others have such opportunities after him.

The use of money in elections has reached one of those climaxes that precede and produce revolt. Both parties are guilty, but not equally so. The party in power has protection and privileges to sell, for a full generation has derived tribute upon those whom the government could help or hinder. It is the chief culprit; the Democratic party, so far as it has offended, has been its humble imitator.

It is time for the law to take notice of this evil that is poisoning its source. We ought to have a national corrupt practices act that would forbid corporate contributions to campaign funds and would compel a complete public accounting for all money received from every source. Judge Parker has shown a becoming indignation in the presence of Republican financial debauchery—let us hope that he will identify himself and the Democracy with this reform, which would tend to purify all parties alike.

The happiest man in New England today and one who receives congratulations from his friends is Dr. Philip Z. Hart, of Laconia, N. H.

For years he has suffered with catarrh in its worst form.

Although he resorted to the latest scientific treatment, and consulted many of his brother physicians, Dr. Hart finally said, "I might just as well have thrown my money in the river for I grew worse and worse. My wife and I will swear that Hyomec cured me of the worst case of catarrh that ever existed. I used to cough constantly at night, and had a dropping in the throat, which kept me awake a great deal. I raised thick phlegm and was in a horrible condition. However, I am entirely cured, solely through the use of Hyomec." Wolf-Wilson Drug Co. and J. J. The same thing had happened on the fourth round. Gans had dropped to his knees to escape a blow that did not land. Britt struck at him, but Graney would not allow the foul. In the next round, however, Graney very promptly recognized the foul fighting.

It looked almost from the start as if it were Britt's fight. He clearly outboxed Gans and landed blow after blow.

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF DOINGS IN THE MARKET AND FINANCIAL WORLD

BOND DEMAND
ONLY FEATURE

Sales in These Issues Constitute the Bulk of the Trading at Today's Session.

BALANCE OF LIST QUIET

No Sales Are Made in the Bank and Trust List, But Prices Are Steady.

Trading on the local stock exchange at the session today was of very small volume and in the issues transferred very little if any change in price was noticeable.

In the traction issues the demand was confined almost entirely to the bonds of the company and in these the sales were of sufficient volume to cause a fractional advance at $34 62%. The institution of the junction suit to restrain the merger of the Transit Co. with the United Railways Co. on the part of the latter was the chief factor in the market yesterday. The movement westward showed strong signs of a falling off and the indications are that from now on the return of currency to this center will offset to an appreciable extent the heavy demands on the money market from abroad.

The London market was not a factor in the trading this morning, as the exchange at that center is closed today. Sentiment at this time is decidedly mixed, but the market is not yet in a position to decide what the outcome will be.

No sales of any kind were made in the bank and trust issues and the prices on these were practically unchanged from yesterday.

In the miscellaneous list American Credit Indemnity was the only seller and on this account of 64 shares $15 declined two points.

The balance of the sales were continued to the New York and Suburban and in this issue the demand was light.
